Contents

Table of Figures XII
Table of Tables XIV

1. Introduction 1
   1.1 Chinese agricultural development situation 1
   1.2 Oligopolistic coffee market and production in China 4
   1.3 Fair trade: a possible response? 5
   1.4 The objectives, problems and assumptions of the research 6
   1.5 Organisation of the thesis 8

2. Agricultural frame conditions 11
   2.1 The rights of land 12
      2.1.1 The collective ownership 12
      2.1.2 The land-use rights 13
      2.1.3 Membership right 14
      2.1.4 The tenure of land contract 15
   2.2 Migration 15
      2.2.1 The advantages of migration 16
      2.2.2 The disadvantages of migration 17
   2.3 Organizational types of Chinese farmers 18
      2.3.1 The promotion strategy of central government 19
      2.3.2 The support of local government 21
      2.3.3 Organizational models 22
         2.3.3.1 Specialized market model 23
         2.3.3.2 ‘Lead market’ initiatives model 24
         2.3.3.3 Rural cooperative model 27

3. Coffee market and production in China 34
   3.1 Consumer coffee market 34
   3.2 Yunnan coffee production: a proper quality 41
      3.2.1 The history of Yunnan coffee industry 42
      3.2.2 Natural environment and coffee farming in Yunnan 43
      3.2.3 Coffee trade in Yunnan 47
      3.2.4 Coffee crises 49
      3.2.5 Coffee quality management 51

4. Fairtrade movement and certification market 57
   4.1 Fairtrade movement 57
      4.1.1 Development history and current situation 57
      4.1.2 Impact and challenges of fair trade 59
   4.2 FLO and its Fairtrade certification 64
4.2.1 Fairtrade Labelling Organization International (FLO) 64
4.2.2 Fairtrade certification 67
4.3 Institutional certification system and market in China 71
4.3.1 Development of certification and relevant certificates 71
4.3.2 Administration structure and supervision system 75
4.4 Challenges in the Chinese certification market 78
4.4.1 Problems and their causes in the market 79
4.4.2 FLO activities and products in China 82
4.4.3 Fairtrade cooperative and related resources 85

5. Conceptual framework 91
5.1 A group oriented analytical approach: the debate of social capital 91
5.1.1 The history of the social capital concept 92
5.1.2 The origin of social capital 95
5.1.3 Trust: an important factor of social capital 100
5.2 Determinant and dimensions of group interaction 105
5.2.1 A simple and conducive scenario 107
5.2.2 A complex and difficult scenario 108
5.3 Measuring the performance of Yunnan farmers’ groups 111
5.3.1 Research approach deviation 111
5.3.2 Research operationalisation 117
5.3.3 Methods of empirical analysis 127

6. Resource and development in the research villages 131
6.1 The natural situation 131
6.1.1 Research region 131
6.1.2 Land use in research village 132
6.2 Socio-demographic figures 137
6.3 Agricultural development 139
6.3.1 Vegetable production 139
6.3.1.1 Tobacco 139
6.3.1.2 Sugar Cane 142
6.3.1.3 Coffee 144
6.3.1.4 Citrus reticulata 153
6.3.2 Animal production 155
6.3.3 Agricultural labour situation 155

7. Social capital in villages 161
7.1 Trust 161
7.1.1 Overall relationships in the villages 162
7.1.2 Concrete relationships among villagers 164
7.1.3 Classification of collective units 167
7.2 Norms 171
7.2.1 Administrative village 172
7.2.1.1 Village heads 173